Jingle Jangles Nerves of Nice Citizens

Though Copper hasn't yet uncovered who stole the silverware from the Harvest Fest table last month, one Animal Crossing critter knows exactly who's been naughty and nice. Jingle, the blacknosed reindeer, will be touching down in local towns on December 24, hauling in gifts for all who deserve them. There's still time-have you proven yourself worthy of Jingle's presents?

Naughty Townie Boasts Big Haul

While the rest of us stress over which single Jingle gift we'll be given this year, Imelda from Shoetown says that she's discovered the secret to nabbing Jingle's entire booty. "Darling," said Imelda, "If you have a closet full of lovely things to wear, you can fool the reindeer into thinking you're a dozen different people! Now I have the whole Jingle Series, Happy holidays to me!" We don't know about you, dear readers, but here at The Crossing Guardian, we don't encourage holiday shenanigans. Fashion Giraffe Falls out of Police's Good Graces

She's all the rage and her fashions fly off store hangers, but it might be Gracie who's dressed down by the local police. The fashion designer is just as famous for parking her car on the lawn when she visits a town, and Officer Copper is almost foaming at the mouth about her wild parking jobs! All year long, you'll always know when Gracie's about to hit town when Copper starts yipping about his parking philosophy. We love her anyway-you can't deny that her winter rags are superfine!

Break Out the Noisemakers!

It's been a simply enormous year all over the Animal Crossing world. Who can forget Tortimer's tomfoolery on April Fools' Day and pumpkin-headed Jack's tricky treating on Halloween! We're breathless from all of the holiday hootenannies, but not so exhausted that we won't be at the New Year's Eve celebration with noisemakers in hand. Head down to the pond between 11 p.m. and midnight on December 31 to join the party animals—and watch the big countdown to 2003! Misplaced your noisemaker? Don't tell him we told you, but the mayor always seems to carry extras on the big day.

Chill with the Fab Four

Winter brings more than just snowdrifts and reindeer sightings to towns-a fishy foursome swims into view starting in December. Though you might be able to land them in other months, the koi, pond smelt and bitterling are much less flaky in the wintertime and are more likely to appear in big ponds and rivers. And if you're really lucky, you'll reel in the rare stringfish, which sells for beaucoup Bells at Tom's stores!

Yummy to some, money to others: The bitterling stringfish, koi and pond smelt are all welcome vis tors come the winter months.

Harry Potter's first Nintendo GameCube adventure casts a manical snell. With a nod to the game play style of the Learned of Zelds series and other adventures that focus on solid control and level design, Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets is true to J.K. Rowling's creatton and is a real pleasure to play. Harry's GCN debut follows the story of his second war or Hoowarts School of Washeraft and Wizardry, with some interesting additions that fit right into Harry's manical world. The same begins in the Weadey foreily home-The Burrow-with a lesson on magical basics and earden degnoming, which introduce the game's play mechanics with fun acrivities. Players also engage in a wixerd duel wreas on enchanged washing machine—a scene that is not in the original book but adds to the play value.

The many activities that Harry takes part in over the course of the story give the same plenty variety. When you're not speaking around the halls of Hogwarts in stealth mode, you're flying over the grounds on your Nimbus Two Thousand becom or representing Gryffindor in a crucial Quiddirch match. You'll also engage in barrie such the blos of the Whomsone Willow a giver spider and the creatures that await you in the chamber of secrets. The game's settings look much like they do in the films, and the character modeling and animation make you believe that you have stepped 1000 Harry Potter's above
